Across America
The Soldiers' Money
Imagination's Power
Old-Age Pensions

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

DODGE CITY, Kan., Jan. 30—Through California, Arizona, New Mexico, southern Colorado, and as far as Dodge City in Kansas the fast Sante Fe train runs across the continent in a matter of hours. For conductors and porters it is as much a matter of course as a New York trip from the Battery to Harlem for a subway guard.

If you can afford it, you should make this trip; if not, you should make it as it is made by the family waving six or eight arms from their automobile on the highway beside the railroad track. The trip by car with five passengers, plenty of luggage on both sides and on the back, costs for gas and oil less than $50. No excuse for not seeing the whole of this country.

SECRETARY MELLON tells the House that it would take three and four hundred millions of dollars to pay their cash bonus, and this would raise taxes in general and upset the nation, retarding the good of helping prosperity."

Secretary Mellon is probably the world's greatest financial expert. What he says commands respect.

The soldiers who want their money in cash that they may spend it as they choose, feel that if prosperity came when the nation poured out billions for airships that wouldn't fly, surface ships that never left the docks, prosperity also might be established on a small scale by soldiers spending their few billions.

TO CONTROL MEN, appeal to their imagination. Napoleon knew it. Dressed in magnificent robes of ermine and velvet, he took the imperial crown from the hands of the pope and placed it on his own head at his coronation.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago knows it as proved by his plans for the approaching campaign.

The Albuquerque Journal tells us that from Tucumcari, Arch [illegible] has sent to Chicago's mayor two donkeys and a magnificent horse.

In his electoin parade Mayor Thompson will ride the fine horse, dressed as a cowboy, big hat, high heels and all. The two donkeys will follow behind carrying dummies representing Thompson's competitors in the campaign.

The dummies will have to think of something ingenious to offset that blow.

FOR VARIOUS newspapers Calvin Coolidge has written his opinion that old-age pensions are not advisable. Says he: "What a self-respecting people really needs is not a system of old-age pensions but a population made sufficiently skilled by education and sufficiently self-controlled and well disposed by the help of religion, so that old-age pensions would be a superfluity. Unless real reform comes from within, the problem will never be solved."

Education may some day provide for old age. Meanwhile, what self-respecting old people" want is something to eat, and a place to keep outside of the poor house.

They have plenty of religion, but can't eat it, unfortunately.

After you have taken all the work out of an old horse, you should either knock him on the head or feed him.

After it has taken all the work out of old men and women, their country can't knock them on the

PLAN $250,000 IMPROVEMENT ON ROUTE 30

State Division Engineer To View Proposed Road Work Next Week.

WILL ELIMINATE CURVES

Highway Between Big Island and Meeker May Be Rebuilt.

Improvement of the Harding Highway between Big Island and Meeker at a total cost of nearly a quarter of a million dollars may be undertaken by the state highway department this summer if tentative plans for the project are approved by Division Engineer L. H. Wismer of Columbus when he views the proposed improvement next week, County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens said today.

If the improvement is undertaken, it will mean practically a new stretch of road between the two points, a distance of five and one-half miles. Possibility that the road may be torn up and a new concrete road, similar to the four-mile stretch east of Marion, built in its place was expressed by the county surveyor.

To Eliminate Curves

Even if a new road is not built, it is almost certain that the present 16-foot macadam road will be widened to 20 feet with the addition of new shoulders, Leavens said.

Included in the project is the proposed elimination of several curves and the flattening of others. Present plans call for a cut through Meeker from the east end of the village to the right-angle turn west, which would almost eliminate both these curves as well as completely eliminate the gradual curve over the Tymochtee creek on the western edge of the village.

Between Big Island and Meeker two other curves would be eliminated and eight others flattened, according to the plans.

The proposed improvement was suggested by the state highway department last year and Leavens and his staff have been making surveys over the route in order that definite information may be submitted to the state through the division engineer who comes here next week.

To Help Keep 30 Here

Improvement of the section between Big Island and Meeker would be another item in the build-

NOTICE SERVED BY DEMOCRATS

Will Insist on Relief Program, Robinson Says After Conference.

SPECIAL SESSION THREAT

Definite Outline of Demands Is Submitted; Includes $25,000,000 Fund.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Notice was served today by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, after a party conference, that the senate Democrats would insist upon their relief program to the limit of forcing an extra session of the new congress.'

The Democrats outlined a six-point relief program and Senator Robinson, in speaking for the party, said it represented "the minimum of emergency measures which in the opinion of theis advocates are required by existing conditions in order to avoid the necessity for an extra session of the congress."

Robinson issued a statement setting forth the Democratic program. He gave formal notice that unless the $25,000,000 relief appropriation "or a satisfactory modification of it" is passed the Interior Department appropriation measure of which it is now a part will fail.

The program of the Democrats follows: $25,000,000 for relief; $15,000,000 for food loans; $3,000,000 for medicinal supplies. Twenty million bushels of farm board wheat for the hungry; $5,000,000 for organization of relief corporations; and reappropriation of $2,500,000 for flood relief in southern states.

Meanwhile the house squared away for a finish fight on the proposal, already approved by the senate, that $25,000,000 be turned over to the Red Cross. An agreement providing two hours debate followed by a vote was in effect.

Following the refusal of the Red Cross to accept the fund, the Democratic chieftains were seeking to determine upon some other agency to handle the money. They suggested the Salvation Army, the public health service and the American Legion.

Late yesterday the senate approved an amendment to the war department appropriation bill under which 20,000,000 bushels of wheat now held by the farm board would be given to any agency the president may designate for distribution to the needy.

Chairman Payne of the Red Cross last night issued a statement denying that organization was playing politics in refusing to accept federal funds.

ELECTRIC RAILROAD TO QUIT OPERATION

Court's Decree Orders Suspension of Service on Cleveland-Southwestern.

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 30 — The Cleveland-Southwestern railway operating 200 miles of lines in southern Ohio, will pass from existence by the end of next month.

Federal Judge Samuel H. West signed a court order permitting abandonment of service late yesterday, granting the request of C. J. Mayers, former vice president and present receiver for the company.

Dropping of service had been protested by employes of the road, who claimed 250 men would be thrown out of work and 1,500 persons directly affected. Mayers, however, said the line had operated at a loss of $143,000 last year. A foreclosure suit for $2,000,000 bonds filed against the road by the Guardian Trust Co of Cleveland, is pending.

To Quit Saturday

Under the order, the Cleveland-Bucyrus division through Wooster and Galion and the part of the western division from Oberlin to Wellington will cease operation. The Elyria city line, the western division between Cleveland and

"INCIDENT CLOSED," MUSSOLINI WIRES

Satisfied with Redress in Butler Case; General Prepares for Court-Martial.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGSON, Jan 30- Premier Mussolini cabled to Italian Ambassador De Martino today he had felt sure that he would obtain "just and prompt redress from the fairness, the loyalty and the friendship of the American people whose respect for the truth is well known to me" after the incident in which Major General Smedley D. Butler, of the marines, made derogatory remarks about him.

"Will you please communicate to the federal government that I consider closed the incident which for my part I have already forgotten," Mussolini's message said.

Meanwhile, a protest against the arrest of Butler for his criticism of Mussolini was made in the senate by Senator Heflin, Democrat of Alabama.

General Butler has asked Major Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., retired, an old friend of his service days during the Boxer rebellion, to act as his counsel during the pending court martial. Revealing the step, Major Leonard said he probably would acceed. He expects to confer with Butler before the day is over.

The court martial was ordered yesterday, after Butler had submitted to Secretary Adams an explanation of a recent Philadelphia speech in which he was quoted as retelling a story by a friend about Premier Mussolini running over a child and paying no attention to the accident. An apology to the Italian Premier was made yesterday as a result.

While the matter seemed at an end so far as the state department was concerned, marine and naval officials were busy today selecting officers for the court-martial. Naval regulations specify not less than five nor more than 13 officers of rank higher than that of the defendant shall constitute the court.

The date and place of the court-martial has not been announced.

Officers at the Quantico, Va., marine post, where Butler is under self-arrest as ordered, said by telephone today he was continuing to remain in the seclusion of his home and would not talk for publication.

TAX DISCUSSION WAXES HOT AS LEAGUE MEETS

Oral Charges Against County School System Answered by Board Members.

70 JOIN ASSOCIATION HERE

Aim of Group Is To Cut Taxes by Abolishing Offices Thought Needless.

The first public meeting of the Taxpayers Association of Marion county narrowly missed becoming a free-for-all debate on what's wrong with taxation when 150 interested farmers met in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

The organization, which proposes to investigate the expenditure of tax moneys with an eye to eliminating offices its members believe are not necessary, signed up 70 members within a few moments after a reading of the by-laws and a definition of the aims.

Want School Office Abolished

Although no definite action of any nature was taken in yesterday's meeting, abolishment of the office of county superintendent of schools was urged by several speakers, including the chairman, Dean Ridgeway of LaRue.

At least a dozen theories for the solution of all tax bills were advanced by various speakers. Several times the subjects discussed by the speakers wandered from that of taxation. The chairman was forced to call for order several times when statements by Cyril Guthery, member of the county board of education, were hissed and jeered by the audience.

Guthery vigorously answered the attacks of several speakers on the county school superintendent's office and charged that too many farmers are waiting for someone to hand them something while they should be working and making the best of what they have. "The farmer who sits down and waits for tax reduction will never get out of the hole,' Guthery charged. He also explained that the county superintendent's office was an important link in the public schools system. He derided the organization for attacking the schools, which he said are the means of making United States the foremost country in the world.

Cites Cost of Office

Charging that County Superintendent C. B. Rayburn dictated to local school boards in many matters and claiming that the office of county superintendent was a needless drain on the county budget, A. W. Jones of LaRue was the first speaker to launch an attack against the county school system. He declared expenditures in the office of Superintendent Rayburn for the school year ending in June, 1930, were more than $10,000.

Records of county officials show the cost of operating the office from July 31, 1929 to June 1, 1930 was $10,259.04, of which $2,000 was paid by the state as salaries, leaving the office costing Marion county taxpayers $8,259.04.

H. W. Cookston, unsuccessful candidate for reelection as state representative in the last election, charged Superintendent Rayburn advised Marion county school teachers to vote against him. He

REQUEST OF HEFLIN STARTS SENATE ROW

Dissension Rocks Upper House as Alabama Member Asks Election Probe.

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30- In a tangle of conflicting political aims, Republican and Democratic ranks of the senate were rocked with dissension today over the apparently simple request of the turbulent Senator J. Thomas Heflin for an inquiry into his charge of fraud in the recent Alabama senatorial contest when he was defeated by John H. Bankhead.

The request approached a major political issue, as Republican and Democratic leaders looked upon it as furnishing dangerous fuel for the 1932 Presidential election. It likewise involved personal angles, shattering party lines and arousing passion where cordiality usually prevails.

Administration leaders generally favored the inquiry because its developments might split the Democratic party in the south again by reviving the antagonism to Alfred E. Smith. For this reason, those Democrats who were faithful in 1928, opposed it to a man. The issue, found the Republican insurgents fighting their old guard colleagues, because they saw in the maneuvering a personal threat in 1932.

Heflin started the storm by sponsoring a resolution proposing an inquiry by the Nye campaign fund committee.

Reputed Killer of 25 Dies in Mountain Home

By The Associated Press

POUNDS, Va., Jan. 30—John W. Wright, the "Devil Judd Tolliver" of John Fox, Jr.'s "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and picturesque bad man of the Cumberland mountains, is dead. He died at his mountain cabin near here today.

During his 88 years of life "Bad John" is reputed to have killed at least 25 men.

"Bad John" had been in ill health for a number of months.

COURAGEOUS, of gigantic statue, and acquainted with his native Cumberlands as well as any man of his day, the noted mountaineer as an officer of the law gained a wide reputation, for "getting his man." He won a reputation in a day and a section when this depended to a large extent on a quick eye and an equally alert trigger finger. "Bad John" had both.

While he had been in ill health for some time, he apparently made a complete recovery from his sickness last fall and his death today came as a surprise to many of his friends.

WINS $8,812 IN DAMAGE SUIT

Mrs. Lyda Arthur Awarded Verdict in $50,000 Case Against Local Concerns.

SAYS INJURY PERMANENT

Legal Action Follows Automobile Collision Here on Nov. 28, 1928.

A verdict of $8,812.50, one of the biggest returned by a Marion county jury in recent years, was awarded in common pleas court yesterday to Mrs. Lyda Arthur in her $50,000 damage suit against the Osgood Co. and the Alloy Cast Steel Co.

Defense counsel today indicated they would file a motion for a new trial on grounds of error.

The suit resulted from an automobile collision on Nov. 28, 1928, at Columbia street and Olney avenue. Mrs. Arthur was a passenger in a Chevrolet sedan driven by her sister, Mrs. Clayton Morrison, and the other car, a Cadillac roadster, was operated by J. F. Weis.

The plaintiff claimed Weis at the time of the accident was an agent of the defendants, while the latter, in their defense, argued that Weis was operating the machine on his own time. The car belonged to Weis.

Weis, the Commercial Steel Castings Co. and the General Excavator Co. at first were included in the parties defendant but upon motion of the plaintiff when the suit started Wednesday, they were dropped and only the Osgood and Alloy were retained as defendants.

Mrs. Arthur sustained cuts and bruises and alleged permanent nervous disorders as the result of the crash, according to the petition. She was represented in court by the law firms of Clark & Arter of Marion and Cattey & Cobin of Crestline. Mouser, Young, Mouser & Wiant represented the defendants.

H. E. Hessberger of 345 North Prospect street was foreman of the jury which brought in the verdict.

A Live Town

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 30—Well, here we are in Houston, back at the Rice Hotel where the last time I was here was at the Democratic convention.

The bellboys tell me they still find old empties around from then.

I have always said this was the coming town of the whole south. This is the town that dug an ocean.

That's too bad about Smedley Butler. Don't really believe he meant it that way.

Good thing for our public speakers that Russia hasn't got an ambassador here or he would have half of America reprimanded.

GOVERNOR NOT TO INTERFERE IN EXECUTION

Decision Made After Phone Conversation with Crawford County Judge.

CLEMENCY BOARD SILENT

No Recommendation for Action Made in Report to Chief Executive.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 30 - Gov. George White announced late today that he will not interfere with the execution of Fred Massa, Earl Sites and Kenneth McCartney, Mansfield slayers, scheduled to die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary tonight.

The governor stated that he called Judge J. W. Wright, the trial judge in the cases of the three men—Fred Massa, Kenneth McCartney and Earl Sites—by long distance telephone.

Judge Wright was asked, the governor stated, for a further explanation of a statement he submitted to the penitentiary authorities at the time commitment papers of the doomed trio were sent to prison.

Comment on Massa

In the statement, it was said, Judge Wright declared that in his judgment the conviction of Massa was "entirely proper."

In the cases of Sites and McCartney, he said, "inflamed public sentiment which existed in Richland county as a result of a heinous crime in mistreating a woman probably had something to do with the jury's failure to recommend mercy.

Judge Wright is the jurist before whom the three men were tried and convicted.

The woman referred to was a Mansfield resident, victim of a criminal attack. The judge said in a notation that this probably had some effect upon the jury's failure to recommend mercy for Sites and McCartney.

The state board of clemency, which had been asked to commute the sentences of all three men made no specific recommendation in its report to the governor today but called attention to Judge Wright's comment in the commitment papers.

LEAVES IT TO WHITE

"No Advice To Give," Judge Wright Says Prior to Phone Call.

By the Associated Press.

BUCYRUS, O., Jan. 30 - Judge J. W. Wright said today that he would be unable to give Governor George White any advice in connection with applications for clemency for the three Mansfield slayers, scheduled to die at Columbus tonight.

Informed that the governor planned to call him by long distanbe telephone and ask him about a statement he is supposed to have made that public sentiment prevented the jury extending mercy to two of the condemned men, Judge Wright said:

"I'll say neither yes or no. I'll fire the question right back at the governor. I remember saying something about that, but we have done all we can up here. It's all up to the governor now."

The judge's recollection of saying "something like that" concerned a note in the commitment papers for Earl Sites and Kenneth McCartney saying that the jury, in failing to recommend mercy for them probably was influenced by a criminal attack made on a woman near Mansfield.

Rheumatism Goes Swollen Joints Vanish

How To End Rheumatism in Less Than a Week

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, sore muscles or stiff inflamed joints, it's because your system is full of the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism and make thousands helpless. What you need is RU-MA, and need it right now.

RU-MA acts on the blood, stomach, kidneys and liver, and drives the dangerous rheumatic poisons from the system through the natural channels of elimination — it eases pain the first day.

You must use an internal medicine to free the joints and muscles of crippling stiffness, soreness and torturing pain. That's why RU-MA succeeds while external remedies and pain deadening drugs give only temporary relief.

Henney & Cooper says no matter what kind of rheumatism you have, or how long you have suffered, try RU-MA—it must completely end all rheumatic agony or you get your money back.—Adv.

Miss Elizabeth Hulse Becomes Bride of Marion Man Today Ceremony at Epworth Church

A GOWN of Spanish silk lace in an eggshell shade was worn by Miss Elizabeth Hulse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hewitt Hulse of St. Louis, for her marriage to E. Bland Creasap of this city, this morning at Epworth M. E. church. Palms afforded a lovely background for members of the bridal party who were met at the altar by Dr. C. E. Turley, pastor of the church. The single ring ceremony was read in the presence of about 50 guests, at 10:30 o'clock.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and her only attendant was her sister, Miss Miriam Hulse. Van Snider of Columbus served Mr. Creasap as best man and the ushers were Edgar Costello and J. Edward Frank.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Mayo Evangeline Lawrence played a group of organ numbers including "Cantilene Nuptials," by Dubois, "Choral," by Boellmann and "Cantilene" by Shelley, and as the bridal party approached the altar she played the "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Lohengrin." The "Wedding March" from Mendelssohn's "Mid Summer Night's Dream" was played for the recessional.

The bride's gown was made with a natural waist line and long full skirt which fell in an even hemline to the floor A bertha of the lace finished with decolette neckline which fell in a drop shoulder effect and was finished with a yoke of maline fashioned in a natural neckline. Bands of velvet ribbon in periwinkle blue shade, fell from the left shoulder and were held with pink satin roses. Small satin roses which caught the skirt of the gown at the back, were the only touches of color. A tulle hat in eggshell shade and pumps of the same shade and long lace mitts completed Miss Hulse's costume and she carried an arm bouquet of Stewart roses. The bridesmaid's gown was fashioned on the same lines as the bride's, in periwinkle blue chiffon with tiny ruffles falling from below the high waistline and her close fitting hat was of blue tulle. Her pumps were in a shade corresponding with her hat and she wore long white silk mitts Her flowers were a Colonial bouquet of roses and pink and white sweet peas.

The bride's mother wore a gown of black flat crepe with hat, gloves and pumps of the same shade and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. J. W. Creasap, was in a flowered crepe chiffon gown with which she wore a small black hat and harmonizing accessories

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the ballroom at Hotel Harding, covers being placed for about 30 relatives and close friends. White tulips and pink and white sweet peas decorated the table which was lighted with white tapers.

Mr and Mrs. Creasap left this afternoon on a wedding trip to Cleveland and the east. They will be at home at 215 South Main street after Feb. 10. The bride wore for traveling a red suit, trimmed in black silk braid and a black hat.

The bride is a graduate of Harding High school with the class of 1926 and of Western College for Women at Oxford in June last year She is a talented vocalist and during her residence here was active in musical circles. At college she was affiliated with the Edgar Stillman Kelly Music club and the college choir. Mr. Creasap, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs J. W. Creasap of 562 Girard avenue, is a graduate of Marion High school class of 1920 and of Western Reserve university in 1925. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. Mr Creasap is associated with Hotel Harding as a desk clerk.

DANDRUFF
Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have This simple remedy never fails.—Adv.

Ohio Boy is Rewarded

WHEN children are weak and run-down, they are easy prey to colds or children's diseases. So it is never wise to neglect those weakening and depressing symptoms, such as bad breath, coated tongue, fretfulness, feverishness, biliousness, lack of energy and appetite, etc.

Nine times out of ten these things point to one trouble—constipation. Mothers all around you are coming right out in public to tell how their children are being relieved of this trouble by California Fig Syrup.

Mrs. John Gundelach, 1316 East 88th St., Cleveland, says: "I read a lot about California Fig Syrup so I knew what to give Billie when I saw by his bad breath and coated tongue that he was constipated.

"He has been more than rewarded for taking Fig Syrup. It made him a well, happy boy promptly. He never complains of any symptoms of constipation now."

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Believes That Her Father Has Uncovered Important Facts Regarding Hallam.

LILLIAN and I glanced at each other furtively as my father asked "Where are the men?" There was that in the peremptory request which made us surmise that some unusual circumstance had disturbed him during his trip to the village.

"With the boys in the basement," I answered quietly, and my father, evidently remembering his credo that I must not be excited, sat down in the nearest chair.

"One does not realize here how terribly hot it is outside," he said [illegible] and this time Lillian and I did not dare to exchange glances. Though the day had been warm there had been no excessive heat for August, and directly after my father's departure for the village there had sprung up the refreshing breeze which almost invariably comes to the east end of the island in the late afternoon.

A Fatherly Command

"I've always proudly claimed," I commented, smiling, "that this farmhouse veranda is the coolest spot on the island. Isn't that breeze wonderful?"

"It always makes me hungry," Lillian said, giving me my cue—I guessed, with intention. "Isn't it almost dinner time?"

"Yes, you poor starved travelers, it is," I assured her. "I told Katie to have dinner earlier tonight. If you will excuse me, I will call the youngsters and send them up to Katherine to get calmed down before dinner. They have been having a riotous time down in their playroom with Harry and Dicky."

"Better send the men to get calmed down," Lillian drawled as I rose. "They need it more than the boys."

My father was on his feet before I had taken three steps, and his voice was peremptory, though tender.

"Sit down!" he said. "I will tell them you want them."

Disciplinary Measures

I obeyed him and Lillian grinned at me in recognition of this additional instance of the well-meant but irksome care, amounting to fussiness, with which my father has surrounded me ever since my tiny new daughter came to the world.

It was but a few seconds before we heard my young son and his cousin in voluble protest upon the stairs.

"Your father must be in a hurry," Lillian said. "If he hadn't gone down there the kids wouldn't have thought about starting yet."

I smiled at her just estimate of the indulgence with which her husband and mine treat the children, and then Junior and Roderick burst into the room, both voicing their favorite expletive, learned from the Ticer family, of "Aw shucks" as they raced toward me.

"Aw- Mums" Junior's voice was almost tearful as he clutched my arm. "We were just having a race with our trains and—"

"It's a rotten deal," Roderick said vehemently.

I was conscious that Dicky and my father with Harry Underwood were standing in the doorway, but I also knew that neither Junior's father nor grandfather would interfere for a second with whatever measures I took to deal with the rudeness of the small boys. Dicky and I always have scrupulously avoided even the appearance of interference with any disciplinary measures employed by the other, and my father is always strictly neutral.

I took each boy by the arm without speaking and swung them in front of me so that I could look directly into their eyes. I did not speak a word, only gazed steadily and gravely at them until their eyes dropped and they wriggled uneasily.

"I thought you knew how gentlemen behaved," I said at last, "but you evidently need many more lessons. If we did not need the veranda I should insist upon your practicing a quiet entrance for a half hour or so. You are to go up now to Aunt Katherine and get ready for dinner. Tell her I said that if she thinks best, you are to go on punishment for fifteen minutes because you were rude. You may go now."

They turned and with a hasty, mechanical "Sorry," went disconsolately out of the door, giving no look to the three men who stepped aside to let them pass and who made no comment until the sound of their lagging footsteps died away upon the stairs.

A Humiliating Story

"The last time I saw a small boy mildly reproved because he was rude," Harry Underwood drawled, "he lay down upon the floor and kicked and screamed until the whole hotel came a-runnin'. You remember, Lil? that place where we had lunch on the way down from the Berkshires."

"I remember distinctly," Lillian returned with a wry smile.

"You have reason to," her husband returned with a happy grin. "You thought the noise covered all sound of speech, so you said to me quite audibly 'If that brat were only mine.' And just at that second the "brat" stopped to catch his breath, and everybody around heard you, including the child's mother."

Dicky chuckled. "What did the mother do, make a lunge at Lil's hair?"

"No, she only glared. She didn't have breath to say anything. She'd used it all in appeals, 'Oh! Georgie dear, do get up! You'll hurt yourself crying like that' and in explanations to the bystanders. 'He has such a strong will, so determined, we've never dared to cross him much because our consultant said he must not be crushed. But I've never been able to do anything with him since he was two years old.'"

"Junior tried that on Madge once when he was three," Dicky said with a teasing look at me which made me squirm. Was he going to tell that humiliating old story again?

Girls Who Slump

Thousands of girls who drag themselves around certain days of every month! Painful periods that need not be painful—that are not painful to those who know Midol. These wonderful tablets make monthly periods an incident. No pain, not even discomfort when you have learned to depend on Midol; the women who used to have the hardest time have found this to be true.

This marvelous product is the work of specialists. It is not a narcotic but it stops the pain just the same in five to seven minutes. And if you take it in time, the pain never even starts. Every drugstore has Midol in trim metal pocket case for fifty cents, so it is folly to suffer. Many have found Midol the quickest relief for headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, and other pain.—Adv.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TOMORROW is Saturday. I like school. But I love Saturday. One time Jubilee was sick and the teacher let me stay home to nurse him if I would be sure to get all my lessons, and I sat all day with his head in my lap and studied my lessons till he got well, and had every one of them when I went back to school, showed me that a fella who always has his lessons can have a better time than if he don't have them. He don't have to tell the teacher how come he don't have them, and the teacher don't write a note to his father, and his father don't take him out to the barn and get the holdback strap down; and a fella don't have to study half as hard to get them as he does to not get them. He has to keep his nose in his book all the time when he hasn't got them, but when he has got them he can shut his book up and think about something else.

A fella that has his lessons isn't a sissie, but a fella that don't is a bonehead. Most of my bunch are boneheads. That is why I am their chief. That, and because I can lick them. When a fella comes along that I can't lick he will be chief. But I bet he will know he had a fight. We had speaking of pieces in school. I don't speak pieces. The teacher says I ought to learn to speak in public. I told her I couldn't speak but I would sing for them. So she said to go ahead and they would be glad to hear me sing. So I sang "Old Black Joe," so loud that a teacher came from another room and poked her head in the door and took it out again. And then I saw the Lost Bag of Tripe holding his nose, and I looked around at the teacher to see if she saw him, and she had her head on her arms on the desk and her shoulders were shaking. I was going to sing another but Younise scowled and shook her head and put her finger on her lips. The teacher hadn't ought to laugh at the Lost Bag of Tripe for doing a thing like that. He might think he is funny. He didn't think he was funny when I chaseted him all the way home from school and paisted him with a snowball just as he was going in his door.

My grandfather said he thought all the snow that the winter had left had been dumped on the world and would probly stay till spring came. But he said next month is one of our worst months and March is another one. I said I wished I knew where I was going to get some money for Valentine Day and my father looked at the clock and said that reminded him that it was time for me to go to bed. It always reminds [illegible] my bed time [illegible]

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

BY HERBERT ADAMS

(Copyright, 1930, J. B. Lippincott Co.)

SYNOPSIS

Tragedy is masked by beauty—the beauty of a rural English estate, when its owner Annabelle Querdling, is mysteriously killed. The circumstances are ominously hinted by the caretaker in his comment "'Tworn't no accident,'" as Jimmie Haswell and his cousin, Donald Wade, neighbor of the spinster, reach the scene. Previously Donald, learning of death threats against her, has sent her niece, Evelyn Blake, to London to ask the advice of Jimmy, young lawyer with a reputation as a clever sleuth. With Evelyn had come Lionel Duckworth, whom Jimmie's apt perception linked romantically with Evelyn. This attachment they admit while revealing that the eccentric old woman, hating love and romance, barred their own happiness. Jimmie recalls his advice to Evelyn had come Lionel Duck the case.

CHAPTER 3

The Dutch Garden

"'TWORN'T no soart 'o accident," Ben repeated with his broad Yorkshire accent. "They setters, as they call 'em, more like devils to ma thinkin'. No but devils couldn't fall o' theyselves. Asides there worn't no wind last night. Someone pushed and t' poor mistress underneath."

"I don't understand," said Donald. "Setters devils. What do you mean?"

"Is it satyrs?" suggested Jimmie.

"Ay, sir. Setters. T' owd stoan images in t' Dutch gaarden."

"You mean," cried Donald, "that Miss Querdling sat in that favorite seat of hers, and one of the stone figures fell on her?"

"That's it, sir. Her fav'erite seat it wor, and every night when it wor fine she sat out o' there and watched t' sun set. I've seed her scoores o' times."

"You say the satyr, one of the figures, fell on her."

"Ay, but it niver fell o' itsel'. It couldn't. It wor pushed, I tell 'ee."

"Surely not," said Donald incredulously. "That would be horrible. Let us go to the house. What a ghastly thing for Evelyn and Marjorie!"

As Donald and Jimmie approached the house a small group of people emerged.

"Looks like the police," Donald muttered.

Two men were in front. One was in uniform and the other bore the impress of the police officer of higher rank. Close behind came two girls and a third man. Jimmie recognized one of the girls as Evelyn Blake. The other he guessed must be her sister Marjorie. The man was Evelyn's lover, Duckworth.

Donald ran forward and the little party stood still.

"I am terribly sorry," he said to the girls, as he shook their hands. "Surely it was an accident, a ghastly accident."

The girls made no answer. The police officer replied for them.

"That is what we have to decide," he said grimly.

He was Superintendent Richmond, head of the district police. Donald knew him and introduced his cousin.

"This is Mr. Haswell. He may be able to assist you. He helped Inspector Sprules of Scotland Yard in the Hell's Bells affair and the Queen's Gate mystery."

Superintendent Richmond, a hard, shrewd man with grizzled hair and a cynical curl to his lips, had the policeman's usual contempt for the interfering amateur, but he was informed on all official matters and it was known in the force that Inspector Sprules, one of the Big Five at the Yard, owed a lot to Jimmie Haswell in the cases mentioned.

"Pleased to meet you, sir," he said. "Shall be glad to hear what you make of things."

"Happy to help if you want me," answered Jimmie. "The news shocked me, as Miss Blake had consulted me about the letters."

"And you said there was nothing for us to worry about," said the girl almost reproachfully.

"Hush, dear," said Duckworth gently. "The letters may have had nothing to do with it."

"I am going to the garden to see where it happened," said Superintendent Richmond tersely and he turned to the village constable, who was already familiar with the scene. The others followed silently, Jimmy and Donald joining them.

It was indeed a lovely spot cut into the hillside. Round it ran a wall of stones. A grass border edged the pool in the center. At the nearer end were the stone steps. Above these steps on the wall to the right stood the carved figure, half man half beast, of the grinning satyr, poised lightly on his cloven feet with arms spread in invitation. Below him was a wooden seat painted white.

On the other side of the steps there lay on the ground the sinister figure of his fallen companion, broken in five pieces. The body was complete but both arms were snapped off and not far away was the head. It seemed to look at them with a devilish leer. There was a second chair. One arm was broken and stains of blood matted its white paint. Beside it was the base of the figure with the stumps of the cloven feet.

This then was the favorite resting place of old Annabelle Querdling. And this was the place where she had met her cruel fate. The superintendent stood there taking in the scene. Then he pressed his hands against the shoulders of the remaining figure that seemed to smile malignantly at their ignorance. It bent stiffly forward as though it too would have fallen on the seat beneath.

"A bit top-heavy," he muttered. "It would never fall by itself, although not much strength would be required to push it over."

"How many of you were here last night?" He asked the question of the sisters, but Duckworth replied.

"I was in the house at the time and when Marjorie told us what had happened we all came out. Major Gresham helped me to carry Miss Querdling into the house. The gardener and the chauffeur were here too."

"There is a point that you might notice," said Jimmie, who had been kneeling beside the wooden seats. "The unbroken seat has never been moved, while the other one has been shifted six inches nearer the steps. The holes in the grass show where it used to stand. By moving it a little to the right it became more directly under the figure."

The superintendent nodded, took measurements and directed that nothing be touched until photographs should be made. Then he turned to Marjorie Blake.

"You, I understand, were the first to find your aunt? Let us go back to the house. I shall want you each to tell me all you know."

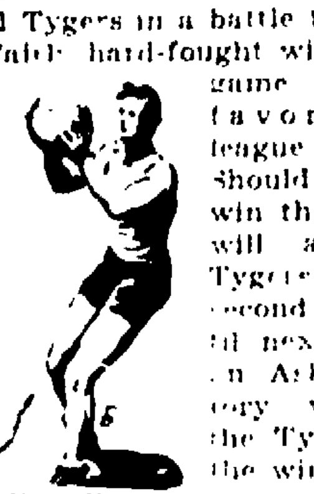
SECOND PLACE TEAMS HOLD SPOTLIGHT

FOUR N. C. O. ENTRIES IN BATTLE TO STAY NEAR LOOP PINNACLE

Harding Entertains Shelby; Mansfield Visits Ashland; Galion Host to Bucyrus.

FIRST place having been cinched for at least another week by Rosie Starns Ashlanders, the chief rivalry tonight in the N. C. O. league will center around the efforts of four of the league's entries to remain in the fight for runner-up post. Harding, Galion, Mansfield and Sheby are all deadlocked now for the second place rung but after tonight at least one team is certain to drop a notch in the race.



Ashland will entertain the Mansfield Tygers in a battle that should be fairly hard-fought with the pre-game sentiment favoring the league-leaders. Should Mansfield win the game it will assure the Tygers a share of second honors until next week but an Ashland victory will shove the Tygers below the winner of the Harding-Shelby game.

Shelby will bring its disappointing champions to The Star auditorium for a battle with the Presidents. Either Harding or Shelby is doomed to be shoved off the second rung. Inasmuch as Harding has been showing constant improvement while the Whippets have not measured up to expected form, the scarlet clad Marion outfit should be a slight favorite to win its third game of the year and remain in the second place deadlock.

Galion, even though defeated twice so far this year will still remain a heavy favorite to hand Bucyrus its fifth beating. The unusual rivalry which exists between these two entries though may cut more than a slight figure in the eventual winner. However rivalry is one thing, a basketball team is another.

Tonight will mark the completion of the first half of the season for the league. If the schedule had been arranged this season as in former years, Ashland would have the championship sewed up but as a double round is being played the Hilltoppers will have to keep going at top speed for several weeks yet to cop the gonfalon.

Any one of four teams is still in the race for honors although the Ashlanders at present have the best chance of coming through.

HOT STOVE LEAGUE

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

TWO of the best pivot men in En-ceoo league will vie for honors against each other Friday night when Jim Miller, standby of the Shelby Whippets toes the mark opposite Jack Ling the current Harding "find." Miller until a short time ago was pressed only by Hoekstra of Galion in the race for all-league honors this year but Ling has come up with a rush to displace the Galion center and place himself next to Miller in the race for honors.

Both Ling and Miller will have plenty of work holding each other down Friday on The Star court. Miller is undoubtedly one of the best defensive centers in the circuit and also is quite capable of running up a lot of points unless guarded closely.

On the other hand, Ling has shown increasing ability at his post, both defensively and offensively. His biggest weakness apparently has been lack of aggressiveness but he is overcoming this as he gets experience. If he ever gets it into his head to use his stature and weight to the best advantage he stands an excellent chance of developing into the best pivot man in the league. The duel tonight between Miller and Ling should be worth the price of admission to the game.

Press followers of the league-leading Ashland Hilltoppers have become quite apprehensive over the possibility that Ashland has been knocked from its championship stride by the graduation of Rybolt and Mathews. Against Penfield, earlier in the week, the Hilltoppers did not click in their usual efficient manner failing until the final period to gain a safe lead.

It is probable that Ashland will get a severe test tonight as it engages the rough and tumble Mansfield quint. The Tygers, having been sharing second place for awhile have no particular objections to staying there and will battle hard to keep close to the top.

SHOVEL Y-INDUS IN DECISIVE WIN OVER GALION ELECTRIC FIVE

Marion Quint Has No Difficulty Handing Visitors 41-24 Beating.

FOR the second time this season the Galion North Electric's basketball team fell before the attack of the Shovel Y-Indus club last night on the Shovel court. The final score was 41 to 24, and the winners were never forced to extend themselves to keep on top.

The Shovel club assumed the lead at the start of the game, dropping in a quartet of points before Galion registered a free throw for its initial marker. The locals increased their lead rapidly once the offense got to clicking in its usual smooth style. Galion was allowed to hit the net for only one field goal in the first period.

Marion shut out the losers for nine minutes of the second frame. Mackey finally looped a charity throw with a minute to play to give his team the only point in the second period. The score at the half was 25 to 6 for Marion. The second team of the Y-Indus played a part of the second frame.

The second stringers again took the floor in the second half and continued to hold the Galion boys well in check, although not scoring so many points for Marion. The first team took the floor but a short time in the second half.

Had it not been for the clever work of Callender and Leonard Galion would have been hopelessly swamped long before the game was over. They were the only two men on the floor able to fathom the Y-Indus playing.

Honors for the locals were about evenly divided.

Ohio State has broken even in two games with eastern opponents this season. The Ohioans lost to Pittsburgh in the season's opener, 25 to 17, but defeated Cornell, 38 to 24.

After the eastern invasion, Coach Harold Olsen's team will have a two weeks rest before meeting its next western conference opponent. Chicago's team will play at Columbus on Feb. 16.

BASKETS and BANKBOARDS

BY "PHOG" ALLEN

By The Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan.—As in football, a body of legend is growing up around play on the hardwood courts. These stories concerning curious officiating and queer antics of players, are springing up constantly. Here follows some which have originated this season and some of the best I have heard or witnessed during my years in the game.

George Cooper, coach of the Colorado Teachers at Greeley, was the victim of a queer officiating angle recently at Butte, Montana.

Apparently for no reason whatever the basketball czar banished one of the Cooper's boys from this particular game.

Cooper asked the referee why his player had been disqualified.

"Because," was the reply, "I detected malice in his eyes."

Competent officials do not read the eyes or minds of players for malice of forethought.

"Poss" Parsons, ex-Iowa varsity player, former Colorado coach and at present sports editor of the Denver Post, tells a good one on a Jewish boy from Brooklyn, New York. This boy was an adept at tripping.

The referee had call the third foul on him for tripping, with this admonition:

"Cut out that tripping. You can't do that another time."

"Oh yes, I can," retorted the tripping player. "I can do it once more."

It takes four personal fouls to disqualify.

Ike Mahoney, of Omaha, a clever player and versatile official-baiter, was playing in the sage brush country of Nebraska when a rather inexperienced and bluffing official shouted at Mahoney:

"On, you! Holding!"

With a sober face and friendly gesture Mahoney asked:,

"Was that a personal or technical foul?"

With great nonchalance the official replied:

"Oh, you weren't holding very tight, so we'll just call that a technical foul."

Upon an eastern basketball invasion with a Haskell Indian team I was coaching some 20 years ago I observed that these Indian boys derived much sport by appearing very naive.

At that time many of these Indian boys parents' in Oklahoma owned expensive motor cars. But they thoroughly enjoyed feigning an ignorance of motor-vehicles and then getting away to themselves and indulging in hearty "guffaws" at the expense of their more sophisticated eastern hosts.

These crafty Indian boys also enjoyed jokes on each other. For instance, the team had much sport jollying a mate because his father, having come into an oil inheritance and desiring to obtain the most elegant transportation possible, bought a very expensive motor hearse, put his entire family, including children and squaw, in the glass compartment and took them for a ride. The father did the driving.

"Pat" Page, Indiana's football mentor, who resigned recently, in 1904 pulled a novel play against the Kansas City Athletic club quintet. This was before "Pat's" entrance at the University of Chicago. He then was playing on the Lewis Institute team.

As the referee tossed the ball up between Page and a gigantic opponent Page noticed that the official's eyes were following the ball in its upward ascent.

Much quicker than it takes to tell it Page literally climbed his opponent. He put one foot on his opponent's thigh and the other in his abdomen and, on his one play, much to the surprise of the official, controlled the tip-off.

No foul was called.

OLDEST OF WINTER GOLF TOURNAMENTS TO COMMENCE TODAY

More Than 100 Pro Players To Tee Off in Texas Open Event.

By The Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 30—More than a hundred professional linksmen were to tee off today in the first round of the tenth annual Texas open tournament, oldest of the winter money events. A prize of $1,500 awaits the winner of the 72 hole test, ending Sunday.

Eighteen holes were scheduled today and tomorrow, with the final 36 Sunday.

Fair winter golfing weather was promised.

Twelve amateur and professional teams bettered par for the course yesterday and seven more equalled perfect figures, 71. One pro., Abe Espinosa of Chicago, turned in a great 68 on his own hook.

Densmore Shute of Columbus, O., who won last year's Texas open with a sub-par total of 277 for the 72 holes, paired with Lorraine Young, to capture first prize of $160. The two had a best ball score of 65, six under par. Shute carried the burden for the first nine with a 33, and Young gave him plenty of help with a 32 on the way in. Each carded an individual 71.

CINCINNATI MAY CUT OHIO WESLEYAN LEAD

Bearcats Meet Ohio Bobcats on Downstate Court Saturday Night,

By United Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 30—The University of Cincinnati Bearcats will have an opportunity to cut Ohio Wesleyan's leadership of the Buckeye basketball conference to one game when they play Ohio University's improved team Saturday night on the Cincinnati court.

The Bearcats have won two games and lost one holding second place, and Ohio Wesleyan has won four straight games. Cincinnati will have a slight advantage over Ohio on its home floor. If Ohio should win, it would be tied with Cincinnati and Denson for second place.

Other Buckeye teams, excepting Miami, should win their week-end battles with non-conference teams. Wittenberg, the non-combatant, member of the league, plays Ashland at Springfield tonight. On Saturday night, Ohio Wesleyan will play the University of Dayton quintet at Dayton, St. John's College of Toledo will play Denison at Granville, and Miami will meet Purdue university at Lafayette, Ind.

Chevigny is a former Notre Dame varsity star and has served as an assistant to Coach Knute Rockne for several years. He is reputed to know more about the "Notre Dame system" than any coach in the nation except Rockne himself.

BISHOPS CLING TO TOP RUNG IN BUCKEYE CAGE CAMPAIGN

Four-fifths of the Buckeye schools are concerned about the same question: Who will stop Wesleyan, if anybody? The remaining fifth, the Bishops themselves, may be concerned about the same question. The Bishops have fought through the complete first round of their Buckeye schedule without a defeat, slim margins in most instances, but nevertheless they have won. The only decisive win for the Delaware boys was over the Miami Redskins who were overwhelmed 30-11. With this exception Wesleyan has not won a game by more than four points, and a four point margin is nothing to write home about in the Buckeye. All believe, and hope, that Wesleyan will crack under the strain.

Wesleyan's next Buckeye game is with Miami on February 3, a game which initiates the second round in the Buckeye.

No Buckeye team can be counted out of the running. Cincinnati, especially, will be dangerous from now on. After losing a string of six early-season games the Bearcats came back to win from Denison and Miami and now hold second place in the rating. The second-round game between Cincinnati and Wesleyan is not played until the middle of February but both teams are preparing for a crucial battle. Ohio, Denison, and Miami will probably be content to divide the last three places among themseves. Just at present Miami is in undisputed possession of the cellar.

GOOD NEWS for fruit and vegetable growers. Swift & Co., the great Chicago packers, will add to their activities the canning of vegetables and fruits, thus adding Swift & Co.'s wide distributing powers to the resources of the growers.

Production is solved: distribution is the problem. Government regulations preventing the packers from going into any kind of business or engaging in any kind of distribution, is harmful.

The best possible way to help the farmer is to encourage distribution, which means greater consumption and greater prosperity.

ELECTRIC RAILROAD TO QUIT OPERATION

Oberlin and the branches from Elyria to Oberlin and Elyria to Lorain will operate until midnight Feb. 28. Freight service on these lines will end at midnight tomorrow.

The order specified that no poles, trolley wires or any other property of the company may be sold except by court order. The power business of the road was sold in 1928 to the Reserve Power & Light Co. for more than $2,000,000 which was applied on the interurban's indebtedness. At a hearing in federal court here Wednesday, the employes' committee charged that the railway discriminated in favor of the power company.

The company operates one of Ohio's longest electric lines. It served as a feeder from northern Ohio cities to the C. M. & B. and C., D. & M. electric lines running from Bucyrus through Marion to Columbus. At one time during the court proceedings it was rumored that the C., D. & M. would purchase the company. This later was denied, however.

From 25 to 30 employes of the road in Galion and Bucyrus will be affected by the order to discontinue service. Passenger and freight offices in the places will be closed Saturday night.

PLAN $250,000 ROAD IMPROVEMENT HERE

State Division Engineer To View Proposed Road Work Next Week.

ing up of the Harding Highway from Mansfield to Delphos. Last year a four-mile concrete section was laid from Marion to route 98 on the east. Efforts also are being made, it is understood, to wipe out dangerous crossings between Lima and Delphos in order to make the Mansfield-to-Delphos road one of the best in the state.

Should the improvement from Big Island to Meeker be approved by the state, it will help the Harding Highway to retain its present designation as route 30 in face of efforts being made to transfer the route number to the Lincoln Highway from Mansfield to Delphos, it is pointed out.

Wismer will make a thorough inspection of the proposed improvement and in turn will submit his findings to the state highway department. If the latter approves the plans to undertake the project bids probably will be opened this spring and the contract let immediately in order that the work may be completed during the summer.

Leavens, E. T. Lewis and W. H. Holverstott returned yesterday from Columbus where they attended the annual banquet on Wednesday night of the Ohio Good Roads Federation. Lewis is a member of the federation and Holverstott is a trustee.

Leavens yesterday attended sessions of the state meeting for township trustees, at which several township trustees from Marion county attended. The meeting was held in the Neil House, where the good roads banquet also was held.

HARVARD DISMISSES SON OF PROFESSOR

Yale University Instructor's Son Expelled for Hurling Grapefruit at Vallee.

By The Associated Press.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 30 — The Boston Post says that James S. Angier of New Haven, Conn., Harvard student and son of Professor Roswell Parker Angier of Yale, was dismissed from Harvard university by the faculty today. The dismissal, the Post adds, followed a series of escapades which ended last Thursday night, when grapefruit were hurled at Rudy Vallee by three students at the Metropolitan theater.

Angier, the Post says, was one of the three Harvard boys taken to the La Grange street police station in connection with the grapefruit episode. The fruit was hurled at the radio singer from the balcony of the theater during a performance.

The three students were released by the police when Vallee and the theater management refused to press charges against them.

At the time, the students denied they had hurled the missiles, but the Post says Angier said that the grapefruit throwing was a "great idea."

The expulsion of Angier by the Harvard administrative board today, the paper says, followed an investigation of the Vallee affair by the Harvard faculty.

William P. Blanc of New York, according to the Post, one of the others of the trio, was placed on probation by the faculty.

TRIAL DATE SET

Former Ohio Wesleyan Professor Charged With Robbery in Akron.

By International News Service.

AKRON, O., Jan. 30—Prosecutor Don Isham of Summit county today announced that the trial of Otis E. Long, 40, former Ohio Wesleyan university professor, who is accused of robbing a number of Akron stores, will start in common pleas court here next Monday before Judge L. S. Parsons.

Long, who police say is a modern "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde" because, they claim, he robbed Akron stores at night and worked as a government internal revenue agent by day, was arrested last Oct. 7.

would be sent to the chief executive sometime after noon today.

The application for a reprieve was filed on behalf of McCartney alone, but it was said at the governor's office that Dr. C. H. Creed, chief psychiatrist for the state department of welfare, already had examined McCartney and his two companions, Earl Sites and Fred Massa, as well. Dr. Creed was said to have found no indication that the men are insane.

The report of Dr. Creed and the recommendation of the clemency board were to be submitted simultaneously to the governor and action on the applications for reprieve and commutation was to be taken at the same time.

Electric Chair Inspected

The gloomy stillness of the penitentiary deathhouse was broken this morning by the activity of electricians who were sent to make a careful inspection of the electrodes and the wiring leading to the chair.

For this is only the second time in the history of the institution that the state has been called upon to perform a triple electrocution and the prison officials wished to be certain that there was nothing to mar the grim routine.

The prisoners themselves remained uncommunicative. Outsiders who passed their cell saw them reading magazines and jotting notes upon paper and heard them talking in muffled tones. Massa, the "trigger man," was the most sullen of the group. In answer to a call through the bars of the cell he merely turned in his bunk with his face to the wall.

Sites Baptized

Sites embraced the Roman Catholic faith this morning. He was baptized by Rev. Fr. Albert O'Brien, the Catholic chaplain, and with his companion in crime, Fred Massa, who was born a Catholic, attended mass at 5:30 a. m.

McCartney, the third member of the trio, is a Protestant.

The families of Sites and Massa visited them at the prison yesterday. Today McCartney's father and mother, a brother and a sister called to say goodbye.

The condemned men made no special requests for their last meal, so they will eat, as their predecessors have, of the meal that Mrs. P. E. Thomas, the wife of the warden, prepares for men who don't care. They will get fried chicken, mashed potatoes, creamed peas, pear salad, cake, ice cream and coffee, and a glass of sweetened lemonade will be set before them if they wish it.

They will eat together in the small room adjoining the chamber where later they will go one by one to their deaths.

THREE OTHERS DOOMED

Trio Convicted of Slaying Colorado Officer Await Execution.

By The Associated Press.

CANON CITY, Colo., Jan. 30— Three men convicted of slaying Carol A. Hickman, Eads, Colo., deputy sheriff in their flight last March after robbing a Manter, Kas., bank of $4,000 were to be hanged here tonight.

The condemned robbers, John Walker, 45; Claude Ray, 24, and Andrew Halliday, 22, are to go to the gallows between 9 and 10 p. m.

Walker was visited yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Julia Rhodes, 71, of Hoplin, Mo., whom he failed to deceive with the assertion he had escaped with a 20-year sentence. The prisoner had written letters to her for 20 years in advance and requested that one be mailed each month from the prison.

All pretense had disappeared today as the hour for execution of the three neared and the men admitted they were afraid.

Until the death warrants were read to them yesterday, the men had appeared unafraid. After that they became nervous. Halliday paced his cell. Ray spent most of his time in prayer. Walker plainly showed his fright.

TAX DISCUSSION HOT AS LEAGUE MEETS

Oral Charges Against County School System Answered by Board Members.

asserted that teachers' organizations were responsible for the defeat of his proposed bill which would limit the levying of local taxes to build up the teachers' retirement fund.

Quotes from Letter

Cookston was invited to speak after a letter, said to be sent from Superintendent Rayburn to a Green Camp resident during the election had been read. The letter urged that Lauer be favored for representative as Cookston was "poison" to Superintendent Rayburn.

When Cyril Guthery took the floor a few moments later to defend attacks on the county superintendent's office, he declared the letter was personal and should not have been submitted. He said that Superintendent Rayburn did not circulate the letter throughout the county as rumored during the election.

Lewis Seckels of Caledonia also criticized the county superintendent's office, declaring it is a "fifth wheel on the wagon" so far as education is concerned.

Superintendent Rayburn was not present at the meeting. He had nothing to say regarding statements made concerning his office yesterday when approached today.

W. T. Owens, member of the county board of education, sustained Guthery in the statement that the school standard should not be lowered. He pointed out that elimination of the county superintendent's office would not make an appreciable difference in the taxes of Marion county farmers. He charged the "squandering of funds by the state and federal governments were responsible for the high taxes.

Dr. Smith Speaks

Owens also hit the agriculture extension work as an expense which is not worth the money. He said hundreds of bulletins costing much money to print were mailed out to farmers and voiced the opinion that only one out of each 10 bulletins were read.

Dr. F. C. Smith, chairman of the Ohio Tax Reduction League, gave a short talk urging united effort on the part of the two groups and other similar organizations in the state to bring about lower taxes.

Claiming that the control of taxes is now largely in the hands of persons who depend on tax money for a living, Dr. Smith said: "Every person who lives off tax money is an active or potential force to increase taxes."

George H. Kirkpatrick of near Utica explained the setup of rural tax organization in Knox county which is limited to farm owners. He said the farmer is now finding it difficult to make money because taxes have increased 400 per cent since 1911 whereas the price of farm produce is below the figures paid in that year.

Chairman Ridgeway announced he would appoint committees to investigate expenditure of tax money thought needless by members of the organization. No committees have yet been named. Date for a future meeting of the organization has not been set.

ADHERENCE TO PARTY URGED BY SPEAKERS

Attorney General Bettman, James T. Begg Address McKinley Day Celebrants.

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire.

CANTON, O., Jan. 30—James T. Begg of Cleveland and Gilbert Bettman, attorney general, in addresses delivered here last night at the annual McKinley day banquet, stressed the importance of party responsibility as a cure for many political and economic problems now vexing the nation.

The attorney general announced publicly that he is not a potential candidate for any office except the one he now occupies and Begg, a former member of congress and unsuccessful candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in 1928 and now mentioned as a probable candidate in 1932, refrained from commenting seriously on the subject.

Mrs. Wilma Sinclair LeVan of Steubenville, former national committeewoman from Ohio, spoke briefly on the political outlook for 1931. More than 500 Republican men and women from all parts of Stark county attended.

The Republican party is in need of leaders with courage enough to carry out the sound principles of government advocated and believed in by William McKinley, the speakers declared.

Both Begg and Attorney General Bettman attacked the present primary system of nominating candidates and suggested that the primary law should be amended to make possible the selection of candidates by convention.

LEGISLATURE PASSES EMERGENCY MEASURE

Gov. White Gets Bill Allowing State To Accept Federal Money.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 30—An emergency bill entitling Ohio to accept its share of federal money for construction of highways this summer was before Governor White for approval today.

The measure was passed by both houses of the legislature before it adjourned yesterday until Monday night. Introduced by senate minority leader Dearmond, the measure authorizes the highway department to receive $2,000,000 in federal funds provided that sum is matched by the state between now and Sept. 1.

Congress appropriated the state aid funds totaling $80,000,000 as a means of relieving the unemployment situation.

A joint resolution by Senator Ackerman of Cleveland memorializing congress to authorize immediate payment of world war veterans adjusted compensation certificates also was passed by the senate. The house still must act on the resolution.

Relief measures also occupied the taxation committees of both houses. Representatives of large cities urged the committees to expedite action on bills empowering municipalities, counties and townships to issue bonds up to one tenth of one per cent of their tax duplicates in order to meet emergencies caused by revenue shortages. The committees also were asked to speed up measures to relieve distress among the poor in urban centers.

Woman Sought as "Torch Murder" Aid

By The Associated Press.

FREMONT, O., Jan. 30 — A woman believed to have participated in the "torch murder" of Russell C. Gibbs, 22, of Clyde, last July was being hunted by Sheriff Tom Pask of Sandusky county today.

The woman, the sheriff said, was reported to have joined in a plot to slay Gibbs for his money on his wedding eve. Two men, Charles O'Neil, 22, and Charles Jeffrey, 28, both of whom are named in first degree murder warrants are being held.

Gibbs' body was found in his burned automobile last July 28.

A cold does 3 things
"Pape's" stops them all

A cold always affects you in at least three ways. All passages are inflamed and irritated. Perspiration is checked. Bowels are clogged with acid wastes and from the mucous discharge. So doctors say you must do three things to be rid of a cold.

Pape's Cold Compounds does all three. It reduces inflammation and swelling of the mucous membrane induces perspiration, opens the bowels. Chew one of these pleasant tablets and see how quickly nasal discharge stops, head clears, breathing becomes easy. See how that achy, feverish, weak feeling disappears. And "Pape's" doesn't stop with killing cold germs. It activates bowels and removes germs and acid wastes from the system. All drug stores—35c. Just remember "Pape's."—Adv.

Board Approves Plans for Night School Class

Education Heads Respond to Demand for Special Courses; Offer Instruction in Five Subjects; Confirms Organization in New Building.

Approval of plans for several night school classes which will be started Monday night, Feb. 9, at Harding High school, was given by the board of education yesterday at a special meeting held in the office of Superintendent George A. Bowman at the high school.

Classes will be conducted in shop mathematics, mechanical drawing, blueprint reading and machine and woodshop practice, provided a sufficient number of pupils enroll, according to Bowman. Ten pupils must enroll in a class before it will be held, he said.

Rieker in Charge

A fee of $2 will be charged for each subject to help defray expenses of the school, which will be in charge of L. H. Rieker, vocational coordinator at Harding High school. Enrollment may be made by seeing Rieker personally or by telephoning him at 2040.

Although the board last fall tentatively decided not to operate a night school this year, the classes will be offered as a result of a demand for them, it was said.

The board confirmed the teacher organization of the new grade school at Pennsylvania and Indiana avenues which opened Monday. Miss Linda Willauer, principal at Forest Lawn and teacher of the sixth grade, which was one of those transferred to the new school, will be in charge of the new building for the remainder of the year but will continue also as principal of Forest Lawn.

Miss Grace Winget, second grade teacher at Forest Lawn, will be in charge of the school when Miss Willauer is absent.

Pupils Transferred

All pupils who were transferred to the new building this week from Vernon Heights and Forest Lawn will remain under their regular teachers for the rest of the year, Bowman told the board. The transferred classes, with their teachers, are as follows: Fourth grade, Vernon Heights, Miss Helen Atchinson; fifth grade, Vernon Heights, Miss Helen Warwick; sixth grade, Vernon Heights, Miss Helen King, fourth grade, Forest Lawn, Miss Emma Duerr; fifth grade, Forest Lawn, Miss Arena Hinds, and sixth grade, Forest Lawn, Miss Linda Willauer.

The sixth grade at Vernon Heights has been located in the Forest Lawn building due to congestion in the former school.

Both Vernon Heights and Forest Lawn will be considerably relieved by the transfer, which involves 225 pupils, Bowman told the board. Several sections at Forest Lawn now will be split and will enable the board to place Miss Helen Kennedy, one of the teachers, on full time instead of half-time as formerly.

Teacher Granted Leave

Miss Mella Van Meter, home economics teacher at Vernon Heights school, was granted a leave of absence for the second half of the school year, effective next Monday, in order that she may complete her studies at Columbia university. Miss Van Meter also taught seventh and eighth grade home economics classes at Harding High school.

The board employed Miss Eleanor Vaughan to replace Miss Van Meter during the latter's leave. Miss Vaughan, a Marion girl, formerly taught at Silver street elementary school but for the past year and a half has studied at Ohio State university where last month she obtained a degree in home economics.

European Film Makers May Outdo Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Europe is developing its motion picture business to the utmost, and promises to be a real competitor of Hollywood, according to word received here from Willard Webb, former Hollywood director now in London.

There is tremendous activity in the European concerns, according to Webb. Their output is increasing more and more and improvement is rapidly taking place.

"Hollywood producers would do well," he said, "to take European production and its future much more seriously than they have hitherto done. A grim determination to eventually become real competitors of Hollywood is written on the faces of the Continental producers, and no one can truthfully state that improvement in their output is not rapidly taking place."

Prescribes Oatmeal Remedy for Clearing of Blemishes

PHINE HUDDLESTON

C ING our series of n beautifying the to discuss the treat- blackheads today. Of explained in a previous skin on the back is an identical condition. same as that on the excessive oiliness, the bags was suggested the condition. That ent frequently clears minor blackheads.

When an aggrevated blackhead condition is present, however, a combination of the oatmeal bags for oily skin, and the clay pack for bleaching are effectual.

First of all, you will remember that we never start any skin treatment until after a thorough cleansing, dip a cloth into hot water and wring it out, then place it to the back and hold it there for a minute. When you remove this hot compress, you are ready to apply your clay. Do not dry the back, just smooth over it a thin coating of the clay and sit quietly until it is thoroughly dry.

When the clay has completely dried, saturate a small turkish bath towel in cold water, fold it once and hold it to the back. Repeat these applications until the clay becomes moist enough to wipe away easily. The clay will not stain the towel.

After the removal of the clay pack, you will find that an application of the oatmeal bag, differing somewhat to the one we used to remedy the oily skin condition, will finish up the clay pack treatment to fine advantage, leaving the skin soft and normal. The difference between the two oatmeal bags is only that the castile soap is eliminated from the one we are to use in today's treatment since the skin is thoroughly cleansed before applying the clay. Therefore we will use one (1) cupful of oatmeal (uncooked) and one-eighth (⅛) teaspoonsful of powdered sulphur. You will need to use only one (1) tablespoonful of the mixture to each bag. After saturating the bag in warm water, rub it over the back until a generous amount of the milky fluid is spread over the skin. Let this dry on the skin, then rinse it off with clear warm water, and pat on the benzoin lotion. You will remember this lotion is made by adding ten (10) drops of tincture of plain benzoin to one (1) cup of cold water.

These treatments should be repeated every day until the skin is free from blackheads.

TO ENTER CONVENT

Miss Marjorie Tobin, 18, above, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Tobin of 198 Oak street will leave Saturday morning to enter the Mother House of Mt. St. Joseph on the Ohio at Cincinnati. Her first months in the convent will be spent as a novice.

Miss Tobin was one of the most popular girls in the graduating class of St. Mary's High school last June. She was accorded the honor of crowning the Virgin Mary when she was elected May queen of her class.

Miss Tobin has been feted with parties this week given by her friends. Her graduating class will be at the train Saturday morning.

Tolerance is something you have after you have worried through three great public moral reforms and seen them fizzle.

We Compete with Quality As Well As Low Price
In these days of keen competition, it is easy to buy goods to "sell at a price." Packers with no reputation to maintain will create goods whose only claim to recognition is the doubtful one of low price.
The saying that "the quality of an article is remembered long after the price is forgotten" is as true today as when it was first said. Our rigid policy of selling only such goods as we can back with our guarantee to "absolute satisfaction or money refunded" is your protection against inferior merchandise "at a price."
The values in this sale will be found interesting from the standpoint of both quality and low price.

Thanks for Mirrors

A VOTE of thanks should be extended those stores providing mirrors as an attraction to their front displays. The number of noses powdered, the flecks of soot wiped off, the ties straightened and the little pats given to hats as men and women pass them couldn't be computed.

One afternoon a young man was seen to stop in front of one of these mirrors and "primped" for fully five minutes. His blue-figured scarf had to be patted and creased and recreased to make it lie in just the right folds. Men aren't vain? Watch them glance into the mirrors as they pass.

Real Uproar

HARDING High School is seething this week. Schedules to be rearranged, new classes to be organized, students wondering why they didn't get a higher grade on that test, all an aftermath of the mid-year exams last week.

A few disconsolate seniors walk into the office, despair in their very walk, to see if something can't be done to raise that grade or make up that subject, before graduation in June. The atmosphere of the office is one of helpfulness. Everything is done to make it possible for the senior to graduate with full credit honors and to aid any other student in distress to straighten out his or her problems.

The average of pupils who had to take their exams and of those exempt because of excellent grades was about the same this year when the increased enrollment is considered, the office reported.

Some Garden Spot

MARION may be a winter resort in a century or two. Marion residents are receiving letters from Florida and Los Angeles, bewailing the cold weather that requires comforters and oil stoves for comfort and there have been frosts in Los Angeles.

Countering these reports is a letter received by one resident of the county from a relative at Wrangell, Alaska, 200 miles north of the border. For three weeks there has been nothing but rain there, and there's been only one snow this winter.

Remembering that Marion has had no severe winter weather yet, the fairy tale may come true in the days of our great great great-great-great-grandchildren.

Aid Appreciated

THERE is at least one man in the world who feels grateful for a Good Samaritan act done by a Marion resident, according to a letter received by The Star from K. L. Morrison of Tiffin.

Morrison asked The Star to assist him in ascertaining the name and address of the Marion man who, on the night of April 10, 1930, carried one Rudolph Fox of Berwick from the scene of an accident to the Mercy hospital at Tiffin. The accident occurred between Upper Sandusky and McCutchensville.

That the benefactor is from Marion is the only clue Morrison has to his identity. He asks the man, whoever he is, to write Fox for the latter wishes to express his thanks for the kindly act which probably saved his life.

Realizes Ambition

THE desire to be a railroader, gained when he rode the Erie and Big Four trains to deliver copies of The Marion Star in the late nineties, has reaped unusual fruit for W. F. Zackmann, a former Marion youth, who recently was elected president of The Wabash Railway club at St. Louis, Mo.

Zackmann and a pal rode passenger trains out to the "junction" a few years before 1900, and it was through these rides that he obtained the desire to begin railroad work. Depots of the two railroads were in the uptown section.

Starting with the Pennsylvania railroad at Pittsburgh on a small salary, Zackmann has progressed to the position of traveling freight claim adjuster with the Wabash Railway Co. at St. Louis.

He was a first "call boy," later advancing to numerous jobs in the transportation field. For the last 12 years, his work has taken him into every corner of the country and in some instances into foreign lands.

The club to which Zackmann was elected president has a membership of almost 2,000 persons and has grounds and buildings including a clubhouse valued at $100,000.

An interesting article on the club and its activities appeared in the Dec. 28, 1930, issue of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Photographs of the clubhouse and retiring officers were shown in connection with the story.

Girl With "It" Both Lucky and Unlucky, Daisy Says

By United Press.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 30—Daisy De Boe, who had two years in which to study closely the mysterious "It" possessed by Clara Bow, feels that a girl is both lucky and unlucky if she has it.

The screen star's former secretary made such a declaration as she read her "fan mail" in the county jail, where she has been since last Friday when she was found guilty of grand theft. She has received enough letters to keep her occupied until next Monday when her attorney will argue for a new trial

"Mothers, men and young girls are writing to me from all over the country," Miss De Boe said "The mothers—strange as it may seem—ask me for advice about their daughters."

Wants Views on "It"

She went through the stack of paper and held up a bulky envelope "Here is a woman who wants me to give my opinion of "It" and tell her what can be done with daughters who seem to be letting a gay life get the best of them." she said.

"I am writing her that a straightforward personality is preferable to 'It' and that I consider this quality better than the more spectacular aspects of sex appeal Of course there is no use denying that 'It' has some advantages 'It' brings fame to some girls and to others it brings only trouble"

Another letter referred to the stand of the woman juror who said she held out to convict Miss De Boe on one of the 35 counts "as a lesson to young girls"

Classed as Martyr

The letter urged Miss De Boe to accept her conviction as a martyr and "get comfort from the fact that she was chosen as an instrument of warning to other girls"

"I can't be in sympathy with that philosophy," she said "I don't believe in martyrs I believe people should be convicted or acquitted on the evidence and not for the sake of being examples to others"

Breadon Not To Do Any Trading To Strengthen Cardinals.

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 30—Sam Breadon is so well satisfied with his Cardinals and their chances to win the National league championship they won last year that he believes he can attend a meeting of the league's magnates without even suggesting a trade to anyone.

"But," he qualified "if somebody wants to do a little trading that will benefit the Cardinals, I'll get interested."

As he prepared to depart today for the National league schedule meeting in New York next Tuesday, Breadon told reporters there were no deals pending between the Cardinals and any other club and "if I should do any trading it'll surprise me."

To Probe Proselyting of Cadet Grid Players

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Charges that West Point authorities have permitted proselyting of football players are to be investigated by the military academy.

Such an inquiry was demanded by Representative Rish, Republican of New York, late yesterday. General Douglas McArthur, the chief of staff, said the charges would be forwarded to the academy for investigation.

BERG IS FAVORITE

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—Jack (Kid) Berg, British lightweight ace, and Herman Perlick of Kalamazoo, clash in Madison square garden tonight for the third time but not in a "rubber match." Berg won both their previous meetings and rules a heavy favorite to make it three in a row.

K. O. ARTIST SIGNED

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—Charlie Retzlaff, the big knockout heavyweight from Duluth, Minn., has been signed to meet the veteran "Rubber Man" Johnny Risko of Cleveland in a 10-round match at the Olympia arena, Detroit, Feb. 6.

STOCKS RETAIN STRONG TONE

Trading on Big Board Light; Auburn Gains 9, Then Reacts.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—Professional traders diverted themselves by pinching the bears in a handful of issues in today's stock market while the financial community was primarily absorbed with annual earnings statements.

The share market maintained a strong tone, but trading was light and highly professional. The hearings in Washington regarding redemption of the veterans' certificates continued to inject an element of uncertainty into the security market outlook, and in the bond division the government obligations were again rather scarce. Share prices eased off from their best levels after midday.

Auburn Auto, one of the most erratic performers of late, shot up nearly 9 points, then reacted. Worthington shot up 5, then slipped off a little.

The Bethlehem Steel report appeared to have been somwhat better than expected, or at least thoroughly discounted. Traders who had gone short on the theory that only a few cents a share in the final quarter would be unsettling, hastened to cover.

One of the most favorable developments in the days news was the further and expected decrease of $23,000,000 in brokers loans. The persistent decline in loans since the first of the year, despite gradual improvement in share prices, has indicated a steady strengthening of the market's foundation. credit rates remained stationary.

The bond market despite the low money rates, however, has caused the deferment of several projected offerings.

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Greenstuffs are becoming more and more popular and are being handled by an ever-increasing number of stores, market observers say.

Although popular the year 'round, such foods as lettuce, radishes, celery, parsnips and other items are in special demand during recent periods of comparatively moderate weather.

Most of the fresh vegetables are grown in hothouses now, coming from articificial gardens in Delaware and Cleveland. Radishes formerly selling at five and 10 cents a bunch have been replaced with larger and more select varieties which retail at 10 cents a bunch or two bunches for 15 cents.

EXPORT GAINS CAUSE SLUMP

Wheat Values Average Lower Today; Corn Also Sags Generally.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—With Argentine and Australian wheat exports increasing, grains averaged lower early today. Authorative announcement that the British government was preparing a bill ordering a quota of British empire wheat in all British millers grists counted also as a bearish factor. Opening ⅜ cents off to ⅛ up, wheat later held near to the initial limits. Corn started at ¼c decline to ⅛ advance, and subsequently underwent a general sag.

Grain price rallies based on drouth advices failed to hold well being largely offset by the fact that Europan wheat quotations were unresponsive. The Argentine wheat visible supply showed a considerable increase for the last week, and Australian shipments were also enlarged, amounting to more than four times the total at this period last year. United States primary receipts of wheat, too, were much augmented, aggregating 1,260,000 bushels, against 969,000 a wek back and 565,000 on the corresponding day of 1930.

Increased arrivals of corn in Chicago tended to check price upturns. Receipts here today were 131 cars, compared with 102 a week ago, but contrasting with 292 at this time last year. Hogs on feed in 11 corn belt states were estimated at 39,292,000 head, against 39,440,000 a year ago. Oats were governed by the action of corn and wheat. Provisions showed steadiness responsive to upturns of hog values.

Do You Feel Worn Out At Five O'clock?

Even if you eat three big meals every day you may be starving for vitamins! The food you eat just doesn't supply enough of them. That's why you get worn out. That's why you feel tired and lifeless so much of the time.

For years doctors have been meeting this condition by prescribing cod liver oil. But many people can't take it. The nasty oily taste upsets them. For these people there is a remarkable new way to take cod liver oil, easily, pleasantly and tastelessly.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are made from the vitamins of the finest Norway cod liver oil. In them you get everything that cod liver oil can give you. That's why the Good Housekeeping Institute has given these tablets its seal of approval.

So if you would build your body up the way doctors recommended . . . if you would enjoy radiant health, go to your druggist and ask for a box of McCoy's. 60 tables —60 cents.—Adv.

DOCTOR GETS MEDAL FOR RESEARCH WORK

David Marne Honored for Work on Functions of Thyroid Gland.

By International News Service.

NEW YORK- The 1930 New York Academy of Medicine gold medal has been awarded to Dr. David Marine, assistant professor of pathology at Columbia University, and director of laboratories in the Montefiore hospital, for his original researches into the structure, functions, and diseases of the thyroid gland.

Dr. Marine was one of the first to investigate thoroughly the relation of iodine to the structure and functions of the thyroid gland. In the course of his work, he investigated goiter in most of the domestic animals, as well as in fish.

On the basis of his experiences in the control of goiter in animals, Dr. Marine, in cooperation with Dr Kimball, instituted the first large scale attempt to prevent simple goiter in man.

This epoch making experiment was carried out in Akron, Ohio, in 1917. In this city, 57 per cent of school girls in the second decade of life were found to suffer from simple goiter. By the feeding of minute quantities of iodine to the susceptible population, the prevalence of simple goiter was markedly reduced.

The prevalence of goiter means much more than the eradication of an unsightly deformity. It contributes, in addition, to the control of a number of physical and mental deformities such as cretinism, mutism and idiocy, which are in some maner related to the normal functioning of the thyroid.

The thyroid gland, its functions and diseases, is the best known among the glands of internal secretion and this is largely due to the efforts of Dr. David Marine.

Women Outnumber Men in Foreign Lands

By International News Service.

BERLIN—Men are hopelessly outnumbered by the fairer sex in Europe, which probably accounts for the saying that Europe is a man's paradise.

There are 18 million more women than men in Europe. The Soviet Union leads with a surplus of four million women over men, closely folowed by Germany with three, and France with two million.

Relatively speaking Portugal has the strongest woman population. In Lisbon alone, women outnumber men by more than 300,000.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Jan. 31

THE lunar configurations for this day are read as very propitious, especially favoring advancement, promotion, increase of funds and a measure of fulfilled ambitions. It is a time for forging ahead with vim and confidence, with new undertakings under excellent prospects. There may be an abrupt or unwelcome change or a threatening gesture of some kind, but it may not be strong enough to circumvent the generally auspicious rulership of Jupiter favorable.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of growth, advancement, enhanced position and finances, with fulfilled ambitions and successful new projects, although there may be some slight chord of disruptive or unwelcome tenor. A child born on this day should be talented, ambitious, popular and enterprising, and should reach good position through its own initiative and talents.

A statesman has reached real statesmanship when he couldn't do anything else for a living.

Rev. Weckmueller Addresses Marion Kiwanis Club at Luncheon.

"Let's Thank God for God," Rev Herbert F. Werkmueller of the First Reformed church urged in an address before Marion Kiwanians in the Marion club yesterday.

Men can do much in harmony with the laws of nature, or the laws of God, Rev. Weckmueller said. He cited numerous feats of science, all of which were possible because the laws of God, which include the law of fravitation and dozens of other scientific laws, remain unchanged.

Were it not for the fact that those laws remain unchanged throughout the centuries science would be able to accomplish little, he said.

In fact everything revolves on the power of God, he declared, urging Kiwanians to acknowledge his presence and set aside a definite time each week for divine praise.

The Olive Branch is well preserved after more than 100 years lying in bureaus and between books, and after the English style, is freely besprinkled with advertisements on the front page.

The Presbyterian paper is, as its name suggests, a denominational sheet. One item was written in regret that no provision had been made for religious culture at the Ohio state penitentiary.

Below are four items picked at random from the four papers:

"We have learned nothing further of the doings of the Patriots, on the western frontier since their defeat at Point au Pelee Island."

"Both branches of the Ohio legislature adjourned on Monday last, after a session of 106 days."

"Several of the New York Banks have commenced issuing small notes of the denomination of $1 and $2."

"NOTICE"

"All persons indebted to R. Patten, will please call, and settle their accounts without delays as no further indulgence can be given. He still continues to sell goods, low, for ready pay. R. Patten."

The papers came to Mr. King from his father, James King. He believes that the Olive Branch was sent to his grandfather, George King, who moved to Salt Rock township in 1823 from Pickaway county.

CHAMPION

MARIE KAUTZKY

By The Associated Press.

VANDALIA, O. — Another modern woman has invaded what once was a strictly masculine province.

Averaging .9266 on 1150 registered targets, Miss Marie Kautzky, of Fort Dodge, Ia., has rolled a percentage quite too high for many male trapshooters.

Her shooting, however, has done more than merely making one more rent in the garment of masculine superiority. It has got her crowned women's champion by the Amateur Trapshooting association.

Miss Kautzky, whose experience at the traps dates back to 1920, five times has been women's champion of Iowa.

BEWARE OF COLDS NOW!

If Neglected They May Pave The Way For Flu Attack

TREAT COLDS PROMPTLY BUT AVOID "DOSING"

Now that flu is in the air again health authorities advise everyone to take these common-sense precautions: Eat wisely; get plenty of sleep and fresh air; avoid undue exposure; and above all treat every cold promptly. Unless checked quickly, colds tend to pull down the body resistance and may pave the way for an attack of flu with all its serious complications.

Attack Colds at the Start

At the first sign of sniffling, sneezing, or other signs that you are "catching cold," start treatment at once with Vicks VapoRub. Place some Vicks up each nostril and snuff well back. Do this several times a day. It will often prevent a little cold from developing into a big one.

If the head is clogged with mucus or phlegm, or there is much coughing, melt a teaspoonful of Vicks in a bowl or kettle of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for five minutes at a time. This auxiliary vapor-steam treatment with Vicks has a remarkable effect in clearing the air-passages, easing the breathing, and helps keep the cold from spreading.

Double Action Effective

At bedtime, in order to get the benefit of its long-continued stimulation and inhalation effect, rub Vicks vigorously over the throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Vicks attacks colds in two direct ways: (1) through the skin like a poultice or plaster, drawing out the tightness and soreness; and (2) at the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the irritated air passages.

Protect Children, Especially

Children should be put to bed at the first sign of a cold, and Vicks rubbed on throat and chest. Its use brings prompt relief, and avoids constant "dosing" which often upsets the digestion. When used at bedtime, Vicks often prevents sleep-disturbing night coughs, thus permitting needed rest for both mother and child.

Don't take chances with colds NOW!

Standard Parts Company Takes Main Street Quarters.

The Standard Auto Parts Co., for five years located on East Center street, this week opened up new quarters on South Main street in the location formerly occupied by the American-Italian restaurant.

Replacement parts for all makes of automobiles will be carried by the concern, according to Daniels. The stock in the new location is larger than that formerly kept by the company.

Parking space for customers will be available at the rear of the building, it was announced.

Roy A. Young and Edmund Platt, ex-governor and ex-vice governor respectively, of the Federal Reserve board, told a congressional sub-committee that the charge of Representative McFadden, that they had been forced off the board to make place for Eugene Meyer, Jr., as governor, was false. Apparently, Mr. McFadden is another federal legislator who is capable of mistaking his imaginings for facts.

Sir William May Be Mistaken.

Writing in "Brassey's Naval Annual," Sir William J. Berry, former director of naval construction at the British Admiralty, makes the sweeping charge that all of the world's 10,000-ton cruisers constructed since the Washington conference are "unfit to fight," and that one well-placed salvo of shells of the kind they fire would put any one of them out of action. It is his contention that too much attention has been given to speed and gunpower and too little to protection. Future cruisers of the treaty type, he suggests, should be shorter and slower and better protected.

Our naval constructors seemingly beat Sir William to the conclusion that the 10,000-ton cruisers needed more protection than originally planned. The designs of our cruisers of this type were drawn with the idea of affording the best combination of armor, armament and speed to meet the conditions confronting American tactics and strategy.

The 10,000-ton cruisers are not intended for line-of-battle ships, their primary mission being to scout, raid enemy commerce and protect American merchant shipping. It is admitted that the 7,500-ton, six-inch gun cruisers of the Omaha type built in 1924 sacrificed protection to speed until they became little more than glorified destroyers, but the first of the 10,000-ton cruisers were given far more protection than the Omaha class, and the later ones being built are being given still more by cutting down their speed from thirty-five to thirty-two knots, with the result that they have as good protection as can be expected in any cruiser. It is the contention of our naval officers that the 10,000-ton cruisers now being constructed will be so protected as to be able to stand up against the attack of any enemy cruiser save battle cruisers, which, parctically, are line-of-battle ships.

But had not these changes been made in the plans for our big cruisers, even were Sir William right in his contention, we would still have an equality in the matter of the worthiness of our 10,000-ton cruisers with any naval power, and equality is all even our big navy people advocate and seek.

Our Government Makes Apology.

Through Secretary of State Stimson, the United States government has formally apologized to Premier Mussolini, of Italy, and to the Italian people for a statement made by Major General Smedley D. Butler, of the marine corps, during the course of a recent speech in Philadelphia. Practically coincident with the uttering of the apology, Secretary of the Navy Adams ordered a court martial for General Butler, who has been ordered by his immediate superior, Major General Fuller, to hold himself in the barracks at Quantico, Virginia, of which station General Butler is in command.

The statement concerning the Italian premier made by General Butler was that while a certain American was the guest of the premier on a twelve-day tour of Italy, the car of the premier was not stopped after running down and killing a child, the premier remarking at the time of the accident, "What is one life to affairs of state?"

Following the publication of the statement, Premier Mussolini formally denied the entire incident, saying in his note of denial to the Italian ambassador to Washington: "I have never taken an American on a motor trip around Italy, neither have I run over a child, man or woman," and later General Butler announced that he made his statement on information furnished him by Reginald Vanderbilt, Jr., who claimed to have been the guest of the premier as related and told him, General Butler, substantially as stated. The general denied, however, that he had made the further statement attributed to him, that the premier was a "mad dog for war."

In his note to Italian Ambassador De Martino expressing the deep regret felt by the American government as a result of the reflections against Italy's prime minister in the "unauthorized address" of General Butler, Secretary Stimson said:

"The sincere regrets of this government are extended to Mr. Mussolini and to the Italian people for this discourteous and unwarranted utterance by a commissioned officer of this government on active duty."

Herein we have the explanation of the hurried apology of the state department and the quick action taken by the secretary of the navy in ordering the court martial. Had any American in civil life made the statement attributed to General Butler, the incident very probably would have passed unnoticed. And this very probably would have been the case had the statement been repeated by a thousand, or ten thousand, Americans in civil life. But such a statement by a commissioned officer of the United States on active duty can not pass as other than unwise and discourteous, and utterly unwarranted on hearsay evidence and without excuse. And had the truth of the story been established beyond all question, General Butler should not have uttered it, for he must have known that the telling of it by one in high command in the military establishment of our government could not prove otherwise than highly embarrassing to the government.

General Butler, beyond all question, is a courageous warrior and a fine fighter. The fact that he is the only man in the United States to whom the Congressional Medal of Honor has been awarded on two occasions—once in recognition of his services during the Boxer rebellion in China and again for landing our troops at Vera Cruz—would establish that fact were all other evidence lacking, but he has been decidedly unwise in guarding his utterances. His recent statement is not the first which he has been asked by the navy department to explain.

From Washington comes the announcement that the general is about to resign to accept a position with a large financial corporation. This may explain, in part, an utterance which could not be deemed as other than unwise coming from an officer high in command of our armed forces.

CONSTRUCTIVE LEGISLATION.

One of Senator Wagner's bills, after three years of effort, has been passed by the senate. It was designed to check unemployment by timing the construction of public works in advance instead of rushing the program in times of prosperity and curtailing them in times of depression.

The bill was passed at the last session of congress, but was changed in committee when it went to the house. As just passed, however, it represents in effect the agreement of the conferees of the senate and the house and embodies the principles of that sort of legislation which seeks to prevent recurrence of distressing periods of unemployment. The bill creates a planning board for the systematizing and timing of public works. As its author claims, it creates a permanent instrumentality of government to keep a continuous watch upon the rise or fall of business and unemployment.

The idea is that if it is well in time of peace to prepare for war, it is well that we should prepare in time of prosperity to deal with conditions that arise in periods of distress and depression. It should serve as a balance wheel to help stabilize private business by providing opportunities for employment on public construction when private demands for labor are slack.

The bill long has enjoyed almost universal approval, but it has been slow to come to a head, so to speak, notwithstanding its constructive character and economic importance. It is contended, too, that had the bill as a law been in operation even a year ago much could have been done to alleviate the present depression by providing work rather than relief, and, as Senator Wagner says, "the country would have been both happier and richer."

The essential elements of this measure are equally applicable to states and communities, and it is Senator Wagner's belief that it may serve as a model for the creation of planning commissions in all the states and municipalities throughout the country. — Cincinnati Enquirer.

BESMIRCHING APPOINTEES.

A long-familiar condition, the tempting of capable officials from government employ by large financial offers from private business, has recently been intensified. The government can never hope to compete on equal terms in this respect with commerce and industry. But it is now facing a worse condition; the difficulty of inducing men of outstanding talents to run the gauntlet that has been set up by the senate.

It has come to be the accepted procedure that any person named for such an office shall be haled before a senate committee and subjected to a searching inquisition regarding not only his training and qualifications, but his views on how that office should be administered, and frequently the questioning has extended even to his political opinions. He may expect also to be catechized concerning his private business and financial affairs.

Partisan politics with an eye to next year's presidential campaign has increased the senate's ancient hostility toward the executive. Differences in Growing Old.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We often hear the expression, "A man is as old as his arteries." It is certainly true that some men grow old faster than others. No two individuals, even though they live under the same conditions, will reach old age at the same time. In this respect no two individuals are identically alike.

"Arterio-sclerosis" is a big word, isn't it? It means hardening of the arteries. It is observed when the change which normally occurs as old age approaches.

Some individuals acquire this change prematurely. The vessels no longer are soft and elastic. They become firm and at times may actually become brittle. Due to these changes, the blood vessels actually break. When this happens the blood rushes out, escaping into the surrounding tissues.

Any change in the elasticity of the blood vessels causes them to become less efficient. The normal artery is elastic, and, because of this elasticity, is able to propel the blood on its way in a steady, even flow. If the artery has become hard and firm, as in arterio-sclerosis, the blood is not assisted on its way in the proper fashion. As a result of this the heart is compelled to work harder.

In arterio-sclerosis there are parts of the body which no not receive the proper blood supply. This decrease in the blood supply leads to various complaints. Chronic headaches, high blood pressure, lowered resistance to infectious diseases, disorders of the heart and kidneys—these are some of the disorders which follow these changes in the blood vessels.

Various explanations have been given as to the cause of hardening of the arteries. Some claim the trouble is due to poisons from infectious diseases, from lead poisoning or alcohol, and even from the use of tobacco. Others claim overwork to be a most important factor. The overwork may be physical or mental. In any event, this condition is found as frequently among laborers as it is in college professors.

As we grow older our blood vessels become older by losing their elasticity. Undoubtedly our modern ways of living contribute to the occurrence of the condition in middle life.

No one definite thing can be said to cause this condition. But all agree that the prevention, as well as the cure, lies in simple hygienic living.

The Scientific Decalogue.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The purpose of science is to discover those principles in the operation of natural phenomena which may be accurately termed laws. Although science just now is discovering certain types of physical behavior which appear to be erratic, the fault lines less in the phenomena themselves, probably, than in the explanation.

The machinery devised by science for explaining the phenomena, whether the machinery consists of actual models or mathematical equations, is clearly imperfect. It doesn't cover all the facts, but only the parts of them which are known. It is the unknown facts, which have not been accounted for, that throw a monkey wrench into the machinery.

In spite of these puzzling phenomena—such as ether, quanta, radiant energy, light pulses, the principle of indeterminacy, certain exceptions to the doctrine of causality—it is, nevertheless, the belief of scientists generally that nature is governed by law.

Regarding natural law, W. W. Campbell says: "If I were asked to name and describe the most wonderful fact known to man, my reply would be, 'So far as our observations and experiences go, every particles of matter in the physical universe is endowed with the property and necessity of obeying the fundamental laws of nature.

"'Our universe of stars, our own star and our earth in all its parts have been developed throughout long ages to their present state under the guidance and compulsion of perfectly definite and apparently simple laws. We have no reason to suppose that these laws are ever set aside or varied in the slightest degree.'"

From time to time, science finds it necessary and highly desirable to take stock of the new laws which have been discovered. R. A. Millikan now puts forward a list of the "Ten Scientific Commandments," upon which rest the latest advances in modern physics. These laws have been discovered within the past century. They furnish the basis for argument about many new phenomena, notably the cosmic rays, the special object of Millikan's study.

First came the principle of conservation of energy. When Count Rumford found that heat was a mode of motion, he put his finger upon the principle of the equivalence of heat and energy.

Second, the famous principle of randomness, generally known as the "second law of thermodynamics." This is the foundation for the theory of the heat-death of the universe.

Third, the law of evolution, which has had its greatest triumphs in the field of biology.

Fourth, the discovery that elements are not immutable. Elements change—notably radium into lead.

Fifth, the discovery that the earth had an origin not infinitely remote in time. There is much evidence to show that the earth is at least 1,500,000,000 years old.

Sixth, the interconvertibility of mass and energy. Mass is a function of velocity. Mass may be interpreted as energy; and vice versa.

Seventh, all ninety-two elements were found to be made up of the same building material, the "brick" being the hydrogen atom.

Eighth, the discovery that the enormous amount of energy generated by sun and stars is due to the breaking down of the interior structure of matter through the self-destructive pairing of positive and negative particles of electricity.

Ninth, the Aston discovery of the method for determining the energy of the particular rays liberated from the formation of each element.

Tenth, the discovery that atom-building is now taking place in the remote regions of space. Atoms are continually being annihilated while other atoms are being built.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

"The City of Kings."

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Lima, the capital of Peru, is a city that bridges the ages. Not only do the little narrow streets and the quaint houses retain the mark of their builders, the Spanish conquistadores, but the inhabitants, themselves, array themselves and walk the avenues like princes—true sons of the historic "City of the Kings."

No matter how little actual money the young man of Lima has on hand, he always manages to be as immaculately clad as that Lindbergh of dressers—the Prince of Wales.

Papa, mama and the babies are equally meticulous about their personal appearance. Entire families can be seen strolling down the street, each attired as if bound for a reception at the presidential palace.

Lima is a city of idlers. From their gallant Spanish ancestors the people of the city have inherited the belief that toil is for the lowly.

The city itself is evolving from a Moorish town into a modern metropolis. The houses are quaint, and many of them date from the days of the conquest.

Lima lies about seven miles inland on the Rimac river. This is a very small stream in winter, but becomes a raging torrent during the summer, when it is fed by the melting snows from the neighboring Andes.

The Cathedral of Lima is one of its most beautiful buildings, and contains the body of Pizarro, who, with a handful of gallant Spanish followers, conquered the entire country hundreds of years ago, and sent back to his king millions of dollars' worth of the precious metals, for which Peru is famed.

Lima has a curious and unfortunate climate. For six months of the year not a drop of rain falls, and for the other six months a fog lies over the old city. But for the tourist it holds much of interest, with its Moorish streets, its brightly-dressed street paraders and its old churches and museums.

RECOMMENDS COOPERATION.

Editor Star—During the two years that I have made my home in your city, I have noted the spirit of cooperation shown by the labor groups in all civic undertakings, namely, local celebrations to interest and keep Marion's dollars in Marion, and to keep her citizens in Marion on Labor's holiday; aiding in getting conventions of labor groups to come to our city; supporting home merchants; outlawing labor advertising in fake labor journals which in years past took large sums from the merchants; encouraging the employment of Marion citizens instead of those from out of town, and securing jobs for single women as against those married women having working husbands, and at the present time labor groups are promoting a charity ball for the benefit of Marion's needy. The music will be free and all profits except hall rent will go for charity. But, on the other hand, I beg to point out the lack of cooperation being shown by other groups which largely depend upon the men who work for support, and to my mind are biting the hand that feeds them.

Some time ago a charity ball was promoted which employed an out-of-town band, and last night's Star again informs the public that another dance is to be given when Lima musicians are to be honored as guest artists. May I ask why this lack of civic pride and slight of Marion musicians and workers. The failure of the out-of-town promoted "Passion Play" and the small profit to Marion's civic group is just a sample of the lack of cooperation. I can pass the hat and get more than $72 from Marion's wage-workers even in these bad times, and wont be supporting some interests outside of your fair city and mine. Let us better understand just who get the profits and start now, living for one another.

Yours for a forward Marion,

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Jan. 30—Thoughts while strolling: The dolorous cry again of "Cash Customer!" Pierre, the Mussolini of dining-rooms. People who pronounce theater "thutta." I'd like to see Florence Reed and Pauline Lord in the same play. One of those agonizing things that make you sob out loud.

V. V. McNitt, a Trent, Michigan, boy, who made good in the city. Wish Meredith Nicholson would come to town. Simile: As glittering as a nut store." Lads who wear mufflers jauntily. Mine gives the appearance of a sore throat. Never went to a big party without seeing Louis Wiley.

That avenue jewelry store that opened the day of the crash. And weathered the storm. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who belongs to more clubs than the Prince of Wales. Wellington Cross and wife. A blonde with a turbaned East Indian. Broadway's best-known haberdashery clerk—Dave Levy.

A poetically named tea room: "The Cafe of Graceful Pause." If any one asks me to any more backgammon parties I'll scream. The only thing that will stop me on the way to a fire is a taxicab drivers' row. O. Soglow, the artist. London is giving Paris a run in perfume making.

Scarcely any old buildings left on Central Park, South. An entire new front. No. [illegible] where Karl Kitchen lives. Mrs. Oscar Eagle's tea-room. Whatever became of the Follies girl, Pearl Germonde? John Baragwanath rushing somewhere—the gadabout. What happened to euchre? Left bower, right bower heigh ho!

Anna May Wong speaks not only English and Chinese, but French and German. Her real name means Frosted-Yellow-Willows. Those old fellows with string ties and wide hats who look like stage types of great statesmen. And sell corn salve on street corners.

The studio where Clare Briggs first lived in New York. Why is memory such a tyrant. Some people infuse a shrug with high drama. A fellow I should have tipped last Christmas but didn't. Business of gazing into a window. The yacht business is not what it was.

While New York has a few remaining slums not one offers that depressing squalor most of us knew back home by such names as Frog Holler, Jimtown or such and stretched so drearily back of town and across the railroad tracks. They were approached through a gulley of tin cans, roaming goats and acrid odors. In such districts was always an incredibly old man with matted hair hobbling about with a crooked stick. He was known as a miser and finished up in the potter's field.

* * *

In these areas were poor white trash type of boys who chased you and me home from school. The girls had sore eyes and peeped from behind kitchen doors when strangers passed. A man became of age when he had suffered the seven-year itch three times. Almost invariably there was a family named Potts and another named Parsons.

There was no grandiloquent institution such as the city infirmary. It was known harshly as the poorhouse and an inmate was "livin' off the county." Skirting such district was "The Pest House," where seasonal victims of smallpox were taken. Today they are known as isolation hospitals.

Fortnightly some resident of the Frog Hollers would load up on pop-skull whisky and on his way home fire off a forty-five-caliber revolver in front of the Baptist church and in police court next day faced the charge of "disturbing public worship." Then, too, there would be those long-drawn-out feuds. About once a year some one would knock-off a neighbor from ambush in a dispute over a line fence. Frog Hollerites had no money, but life wasn't so drab. Ba-looey!

As a brief peeker at a debbie party recently it interested me to note the change in dancing. Young couples no longer go into a clinch. They circle each other's waist with an indifferent arm and walk slowly around like lovers at dusk in the leafy Bois—a mocking, modern scherzo. Free arms hang carelessly at sides and hands hold the casually-puffed cigaret. It is a bored gesture of sure indifference, the ladies turning to those who cut in with a suppressed yawn. It was no place for an old dodo who likes to twirl in a "Gay Nineties" waltz. One-two-three! One-two-three!—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Sheridan at Appamatox.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Phil Sheridan was in about as serious peril while acting under the truce asked for preparatory to Lee's surrender as in any other episode of his military career. Cavalry under Sheridan, Merritt, Ord and Custer were about to charge on a section of Lee's army, when a messenger from Custer hurried to Sheridan saying that the confederates were displaying a flag of truce, and urging that the charge be halted. That was done, and Sheridan with staff and orderlies rode toward a group of confederate officers appearing before Appamatox courthouse.

But his party had hardly emerged into the open than confederate fire, coming from a nearby woods, met them. Turning into a valley, they rode protected by the ridge, but when they again emerged, nearer to the courthouse, he saw confederates level their muskets at them, while he shouted to the officers to stop the firing, as they were acting under a flag of truce. The confederate officers did so, but confusion in his rear attracted Sheridan's attention, and looking behind him he saw a confederate soldier demanding Sheridan's flag, which a sergeant was bearing, evidently supposing the union party had ridden in to surrender. The sergeant had drawn his saber, and was about to cut the man down, when Sheridan interfered.

There was complete confusion on the confederate side, and either the different command had not been advised of the truce or were not minded to observe it. Sheridan had hardly reached the courthouse when firing on that part of the line held by Merritt indicated that his command was being fired upon, too. Sheridan sharply reprimanded the confederates for this and demanded of General Gordon that he send a staff officer to stop the fighting. Gordon admitted he had no staff officer. Sheridan lent him one of his, a lieutenant, who rode to where General Geary commanding the South Carolina troops, was doing what he later referred to as "last ditch stuff. Geary said South Carolinians never surrendered and recognized no truce. And he put Sheridan's staff officer under arrest. Amid such confusion preparations were made for the meeting of Lee and Grant to agree upon the surrender.

PALACE TO BRING COHENS AND KELLYS IN AFRICA PICTURE

Another in Series of Comedies To Entertain Marion Theatergoers.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

THE Cohens and Kellys go to Africa this time, to find ivory for piano keys. George Sidney and Charlie Murray are co-starred in their latest Cohen and Kelly picture. Vera Gordon and Kate Price are again their wives. The picture is showing at the Palace Saturday night only. "Hell's Angels" shows for the last times tonight.

We've read several reviews of the Africa picture, and they all praise it as the best of the series. The hilarious series started with Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City, then to Paris, next to Scotland, and now to Africa.

Forty years of Charlie Murray's life have been spent on the stage, 20 as one of the members of the famous team of Murray and Mack. George Sidney is a product of New York's famed East Side and first appeared on the stage on "amateur night" at Miner's Bowery theater. That was about 35 years ago. Later he made his way to success on Broadway. His first screen success came in the "Potash and Perlmutter" series.

Kate Price is a product of Cork, Ireland, and Vera Gordon began her theatrical career in her native Russia.

"BUCK" JONES IN THRILLER AT OHIO

Marguerite De Le Motte! It's been a long time since that name has appeared on picture screens. Miss LaMotte has the leading feminine role with "Buck" Jones' starring picture, "Shadow Ranch," opening at the Ohio tonight and continuing Saturday. Kate Price, who is also in the Palace picture, is another of the women in the cast.

"Buck" Jones, is a hero to the children, and he provides the grown-ups a few thrills in his western pictures. He was a cowboy in Montana, a member of the United States cavalry in the Philippines, rider with Miller Brothers "101" Wild West show, was a member of the First Air Squadron during the World War and an entertainer of European royalty with exhibition riding, all in his lifetime. Any one of them would provide enough thrills for the average person.

WESTERNER PLAYS AT MARION THEATER

The Marion also is offering a western picture for tonight and Saturday. "Headin' North" starring Bob Steele, opens tonight. The leading woman is Barbara Luddy, who has been on the stage three years and in silent films for three years.

Realism seems to be the watchword among producers of western talking pictures these days. In the days before electricity invaded the desert, the illumination was by means of lamps whose pressure had to be kept up by frequent pumping.

In "Headin' North," the old-time frontier saloon's lamps come in for their share of glory. In fact, they motivate the plot, but why tell you the plot?

FIND BODY IN CAR

Children at Play Make Discovery of Dead Man, Probably Bandit.

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30 — Children romping about an abandoned automobile suddenly halted when one lad, entering the rear door, stumbled over the body of a man whom police today believed was either a gang victim or a bandit shot in the course of a spectacular department store robbery.

Fingerprint records disclosed that the dead man was George Smith, 34, who had a record as a convicted burglar. He had been shot in the abdomen.

Police believe him to be one of the five bandits who on Monday staged the $19,200 department store robbery in which three persons were shot.

BUCYRUS, Jan. 30—Order was issued by Judge J. Walter Wright today for the drawing of 125 names from the jury wheel Saturday for service at a later date. W. W. Davis and W. V. Goshorn compose the jury commission.
